Special Sources – About Us

Special Sources is a one-stop solution for anyone living with special needs.

If you live with special needs or have a loved-one who does, you know the frustration of trying to find contact information for the specialists and resources you require. This is something we hope to change.

We connect you to the people you most need.

Our comprehensive directory lists contact details for therapists, mental health specialists, doctors, special schools, etc. And we're proud to say it is one of the first in India.

All the contacts we list have been screened and verified.

We check with each institution to make sure that their service or product is genuine and can actually help you.

Our goal is to make your life more manageable by giving you options.

Dealing with special needs can be challenging, but it doesn't have to be overwhelming.

- Search our directory to find the help you need.
- Read our blog, for relevant stories and articles.
- View our testimonials to see how Special Sources made a difference.

Special Sources is....

We are the product of a 3-decade-old friendship, and 2 young lives spent studying and addressing psychosocial needs. We are:

Rashmi Devaprasath

Special educator & 'momtrepreneur'

Rashmi has a background in special education, with a diploma in special needs and a master's degree in autism. She is a young mother who splits her time between raising her young daughter and following her passion for children with special needs.

"In college, my friend's mother invited me to sing with a local choir at her school for children with special needs. Over time I got more involved and came to love working with the kids. It was something I just took to. Special Sources is a project I've had in mind for 7 years, so it's exciting to see it finally take off..."

Advitya Thapa

The counselling psychologist & social worker

Advitya studied philosophy at Madras Christian College, followed by counselling psychology at the Madras School of Social Work. He has worked with refugees and marginalized groups and that field experience makes him the perfect coordinator for Special Sources logistics.

“After studying, I worked with a Swiss organization that funds Indian projects; my job was to visit NGOs to verify their activities. I would look into their books, their papers, their project backgrounds, and talk to their beneficiaries. That experience helps us at Special Sources to verify the institutions and specialists we list.”
